

Do you have a favorite brand of cookie? Did you ever go to the store to get your cookies and there they are, sitting on the shelf? That sure is nice, huh? Now, what would happen if the trucks stopped running? You'd be out of cookies. Actually, everyone would be out of everything in just a few days. The shelves would be empty. There are drivers who deliver these products to the store. These drivers do this without much complaining. We cut in front of them while on the road, curse at them when we get behind them on a big hill and mainly vent complaints loudly just because they are on the road. But you know what? Most of us are just traveling from point A to point B, and have a favorite radio station to listen to to get there. It plays our favorite music! Truckers have to keep changing stations because they go out of the area, and the station cuts out. XM has taken a fabulous step in preventing this. You can listen to just about anything you want, uninterrupted, including weather conditions which can save a driver's life, just by listening and knowing what roads are dangerous. Any radio station reserves and executes the right to broadcast just about anything they want. XM is no different! They also reserve the right to broadcast weather and traffic conditions. Thank you,
Apryl Cherry